H. Terry Smith has been in his clients' shoes. In his more than 35 years of business experience, Terry has had responsibility for operations, sales, inventory and customer service. As a general manager, he led a staff of more than 100 employees and managed multi-million dollar budgets. He understands the pressure to increase profits and improve efficiency.

He has used that experience to help others succeed ... internally, as the Director of Change Management for Best Buy, a 50+ billion dollar company with the distinction of being one of the world's largest electronics retailers.

Part of the ground-breaking Change Implementation Team (CIT) chronicled in the best-selling book Big Change at Best Buy, Terry led the group with responsibility for all CITs nationally. With the added responsibility for the OD department, he led efforts to streamline operations, improve processes, build effective teams and provide executive coaching.

Terry has facilitated cross-functional teams to achieve significant business results. He was an integral part of the acquisition integration team for Best Buy's first acquisition. Terry established change management functions in the newly acquired business, improving business results dramatically in the first few months.

Bringing his systemic thinking into play, Terry makes connections between business results, the customer environment and the employee experience. He redesigned the retail training efforts of a Fortune 100 company to align training, bring an application-based focus and create follow-up processes for supervisors.

Sought after as a speaker, he has presented at international conferences and actively shares his knowledge with his clients and through his affiliation with the international OD Network and OD Institute.

Terry is a founding partner of ROI Consulting and Implementation, an international organization development and management consulting firm. After extensive work with leaders across the globe, ROI identified a need to create a separate area of practice focused on preparing global leaders to lead in a challenging world, and the Center for Transformational Leadership was created.
